

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

La Trattoria Restaurant, 595 E. Garden Way in Santa Fe, will be closing its dining room effective immediately – takeout and delivery will still be available.

First closure of La Trattoria Restaurant since it opened in 1951

“We love our friends and neighbors in Santa Fe,” La Trattoria owner Anthony Sacchi explains. “My great grandfather came to America from Sicily in 1905. My grandfather moved to New Mexico from New York City and opened our restaurant in 1951. Four generations of our family have put their body and soul into our eatery.”

“Our highest priority is the health and safety of our customers and employees. Until this Covid-19 virus crisis is over, we will continue to keep our dining room closed, but our takeout and delivery will remain open. All employees of La Trattoria will keep their jobs,” Sacchi says.

“To help people in this time of need,” Sacchi continues, “we are reducing our prices by 25% and waiving our delivery fee until further notice. We monitor the health of our staff closely, so anyone buying food from us can rest assured that the food they receive from us is safe.”

La Trattoria encourages all Santa Fe residents to help each other – look out for your neighbors, make sure everyone is okay. The restaurant will remain open from 11 am to 9 pm, seven days a week, for take out and delivery orders.
